

NEW YEAR'S CALLS.

The Chronicle desires to print the names of the ladies of The Dalles who receive calls on New Year. It is desired that names be sent in up to noon of Wednesday Dec. 31st.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Captain H. C. Coe of Hood River is in the city. Mr. S. B. Adams went to Grant this morning.

Mr. Ralph Schoonover, of Goldendale, is in the city. A carload of sheep were shipped to the Sound last night.

Friendship lodge K. of P. received seven new members last night. Mr. Fopiana shipped a carload of cattle to Johnson Bros. of Portland this afternoon.

Mr. Cathcart is loading a car with moulders sand to be shipped to the foundry at Pendleton. Mr. Chris Bills moved his saloon yesterday, and is now in the Vogt building on Washington street.

Mr. Deerhake is in a fair way of recovery, though not entirely out of danger. He ate a good breakfast this morning and is cheerful. Horace Rice and family have moved into the city from Fifteen-Mile and will remain during the winter.

John O'Leary of Rutledge came in last night, he reports stock doing well and grass growing finely, but more rain is needed to make the plowing good. Miss Clara Grimes, formerly of this city, arrived here on the morning train from Portland and will remain during the holidays. She is the guest of Mrs. George Ruch.

The barometer yesterday indicated the approach of a storm, and this morning the fog which has hung over us like a government blanket over an aborigine, began to condense, and the gentle rain to fall. A carload of horses and three of graders outfit consigned to Hitchcock and Frazier from Napavine, Washington, arrived here during the night. This outfit will be used in making the reservoir for the new waterworks, and will commence work as soon as their wagons and utensils can be put together.

The number of tramps who came here to spend the holidays is considerably in excess of the average. However, as they are kept at work on the streets no great damage accrues, but it seems strange that they should prefer the warm and sheltering hospitalities of the city jail, to the wild and untrammelled freedom of the grass-covered hills.

How dear to this heart is the old yellow pumpkin, when orchards are barren of stuffing for pies; when peaches and apples have both been a failure and berries of no kind have greeted the eyes; how fondly we turn to the fruit of the corn field—the fruit that our children are taught to despise—the old yellow pumpkin, the maddened pumpkin, the big belled pumpkin that makes such good pies.

Mr. J. R. Underhill of Boyd is in the city. He informs us that several horses have died in his neighborhood recently from some unknown disease. The animals act as if dizzy stagger and fall, and when down roll about as if drunk. Work horses are not affected, the disease only showing in the bands of stock horses. He also says that bleeding them in the forehead seems to give relief, and that the blood coagulates at that spot, and the skin when cut looks as if it had been badly bruised.

The Home Dramatic Club of this city will give another of their enjoyable entertainments Saturday January 10th, 1891 at the Vogt Grand, at which time they will present that interesting play, "A Celebrated Case." The proceeds will be donated to the free reading room. The play is an excellent one, far better than anything the club have heretofore attempted, and as the club is possessed of considerable talent and the object for which the entertainment is given is a laudable one, the Vogt Grand should be packed.

A few days ago Ole Johnson, a rancher and shingle-mill man, was working on his place near Stanwood with a long iron bar, which he used in rolling logs. At a period in his labors he plunged the sharp end of the bar into the ground, and was greatly astonished to see the tool quickly disappear into the bowels of the earth, and a stream of clear spring water spout up from the aperture. On investigation he found the bar had sunk into the ground about nine feet, through a hole less than a foot in diameter, and which was surrounded by a wall of solid stone.

The Union Pacific will next year try a new plan of getting rid of the sand at points along their line which have heretofore caused so much annoying delay. They have experimented with a pump, and find they can sluice the sand away with water pumped from the Columbia, cheaper and faster than they can get rid of it by any other plan yet proposed.

Mr. Ed. Lawlor, of Albina, arrived in this city this morning.

License to wed was to-day issued to Lawrence Wieland and Maria Johannes.

Mrs. J. R. Warner, of White Salmon, has been in town the past few days visiting friends, and soon expects to leave for Portland, where she will make an extended visit with her daughter, Miss Annie Henderson.

The Shakespearean Club met with the Misses Louise and Nona Ruch last evening. After the reading the pleasure of the circle was added to by several selections of instrumental music by Miss Louise Ruch and Miss Iva Brooks.

Companies "A" and "C" of the 3rd Regiment have issued invitations to a guard mount, and social hop at the regimental armory on Wednesday January 7th 1891. Professor Birgfield will furnish the music for the occasion.

Mr. C. E. Bayard depreidation claim agent arrived here from Southern Oregon this morning. He has been there for some time and having gotten through with his most urgent work there is on his way to Pendleton. He left Mrs. Bayard in Portland where she will remain during the winter.

The officers of Wasco Lodge No. No. 15 A. F. & A. M. were installed Saturday evening, December 27th, 1890, as follows: W. E. Garretson, W. M.; G. V. Bolton, S. W.; D. L. Cates, J. W.; Geo. A. Liebe, treasurer; O. D. Doane, secretary; E. C. Phirman, S. D.; Henry Clough, J. D.; E. Schanno, S. S.; A. Larsen, J. S.; R. G. Closter, Tyler.

About 4 o'clock this morning the locomotives in the yards gave the alarm of fire which was soon repeated on the big triangle the two making noise enough to disturb the silent sleepers on Memorial island. The fire proved to be a woodshed on Tom Miller's place in the east end of town, but the reflection it sent up through the fog made it at a distance look like that whole end of town was on fire. No serious damage was done except that it was a sleep destroyer.

A flagpole has been erected on the corner of the CHRONICLE building, and commencing with the New Year, weather signals will be displayed from it. The United States signal service will furnish about 8 o'clock every morning a forecast of the weather for the next twenty-four hours. Mr. Brooks the signal service officer here has kindly volunteered to see that the signals are displayed. As soon as that is done we will publish the meaning of the signals, and then if you want to go visiting, fishing or any where else, a glance at the flag on the CHRONICLE office will tell you what you may expect from the weather clerk.

For the New City on the Columbia River. It is now a moral certainty that very soon North Dalles is to receive another enterprise of greater importance to it than the one already started and our people must not be surprised if, at least, two manufacturing are soon put underway. Mr. O. D. Taylor accompanied by a gentleman from Portland leave for the east on an extended trip, in a few days and on their return we shall expect to see lively times at North Dalles. Back of the proposition at North Dalles are men who are quietly working out the rapid development of the north side of the river. They are financially strong and able to put into practical operation improvements of very large magnitude. The next ninety days will change the appearance at North Dalles and our people will then know what we meant when we advised them to purchase something in this young city.

A ROMANCE SPOILED.

Moral is That Young Women Should Deal Discreetly with Their Fiancés.

A charming romance has come to light over in the unromantic city of Brooklyn. It appears that not long ago a teacher in one of the schools for children set them to writing compositions, of which she herself was to be the subject—that is, the scholars were told they might write out their impressions of their teacher.

One of these essays, of peculiar literary excellence for a small child, drifted, in some way, into one of the Brooklyn papers, which in its turn fell into the hands of a young dentist in one of the growing towns in Montana. The description of the teacher's charms so captured his fancy and fired his imagination that he was moved to write a letter, addressed to her in care of the paper which published the composition. In due time the letter reached her hands. She answered it, and a brisk correspondence soon sprung up, with an exchange of photographs and confidences, which resulted in the formation of an engagement.

The marriage date was set, and shortly before the month containing the wedding day arrived the young dentist received a letter from his fiancée, in which she said that she had one more important fact to reveal to him, namely, that while her picture represented her as being a young woman of some personal charms, she considered it only frank to tell him that her beauty was marred by very defective teeth, which, she naively added, could easily be repaired after their marriage without any great expense.

Whether the young woman's physical defect or her business enterprise destroyed the young man's ideal is not definitely known, nor is it really known at present that the marriage is positively declared off, but it certainly does look as if it were, for three times since the receipt of that letter has the skittish young dentist written to postpone the ceremony, and the young woman is consequently obliged to keep altering the fashion of her wedding gowns in order that her trousseau may very properly represent the latest modes—a privilege which every bride is certainly entitled to. This fable teaches, or should teach, that a young woman should manage her matrimonial arrangements with discretion as well as with frankness.—New York Evening Sun.

Riot of Women in Bologna.

Bologna was in an uproar a short time ago in consequence of the violent street demonstrations of the 2,000 women employed in the arsenal there. The government had just ordered 21,000,000 cartridges, and in the midst of the resulting hurry and bustle several women threw about explosives with the greatest carelessness. A young woman superintendent reported this, and the careless women were discharged. The superintendent had already earned the hatred of the women under her by her pretty face and popularity with the officers.

The discharge of the woman she had reported for discipline brought this hatred to a white heat, and a conspiracy was formed to lynch her. The officers in charge of the arsenal discovered the plot and gave the pretty superintendent a guard of ten policemen, who watched over her night and day. All the women in the arsenal then went on a strike and marched up and down the streets, shouting, stoning every one they met, and usually bringing up before the pretty superintendent's house. Whenever the superintendent appeared in the street the women were after her with clubs and stones, and were fought back in hand-to-hand tussles with her escort of policemen.

At night the women painted the town till the last Bolognaite was aroused and brought to his window with loud demands for peace. The government finally listened to these demands, and had the streets kept clear at night by a company of soldiers. Although most of the women have since returned to work, the plot against the fascinating superintendent is still on, and she attends to her duties only under the guard of her ten policemen.

Mrs. Mona Caird.

Mrs. Mona Caird is a woman who is a lover of jewels and laces and dainty draperies, open to all aesthetic influences. Her drawing room in London reflects her quaint and original taste in its arrangements, its inviting ingle nooks and the odd windows over the mantel. The "den" in which she writes cries out against its name. It is a marvel of white enamel and delicate tints, even the book cases and the pretty writing desk showing the fleckless finish.

Here she has a special drawer for the manuscripts of her new books, "One That Wins," "Whom Nature Leadeth" and "The Wing of Arael." Mr. Caird proclaims himself ready to maintain against all the world that his wife makes the best cup of tea in London. She is a pretty figure while serving it, clothed in a long, falling house robe in tints of pink and gold. Her soft, heavy brown hair, waving low on her forehead; the dainty cups and saucers, fragile as egg shells, seem fitter burdens than sociological treatises for her fingers.—London Cor. Chicago News.

One of New York's Poetesses.

That dear puritan of song, Edith Thomas, though born in Ohio, comes of the truest, bluest New England blood. The elder of a widow's two daughters, her bringing up was of the simplest, but nowhere in all the land will you find a woman with more of fineness and charm of manner. She is tall and slight, with a longish, oval face, bright dark eyes that see visions and dream dreams, a pale, clear skin and jet black hair. For several years now her home has been in New York, where she is a very great favorite with some of the most exclusive circles. Mrs. Vincenzo Botta has been her social fairy godmother. Want of
